MAZEL TOV

on Your Bar/Bat Mitzvah!

YOU ARE ENTERING A NEW STAGE IN YOUR LIFE, and celebrating this accomplishment comes with responsibility. As your friends and family honor you, we hope that you remember the importance of tikkun olam: repairing the world one good deed at a time. Volunteerism comes in many different forms. We hope this manual will help guide your path towards finding the right fit. Check out the next page to learn how to use this guide.

MAKING YOUR MITZVAH MEANINGFUL!

It’s time to get started working towards your mitzvah project.
Here are six things you should keep in mind when choosing your project:

1. Find something that interests you!

You will enjoy yourself and feel a greater sense of accomplishment if you pursue a mitzvah project that falls in your scope of interest. Take that interest and think outside of the box with it.

2. Think big—or small!

When thinking in terms of repairing the world, there are many big problems to address, but there are also smaller problems that need fixing. Think in terms of what will fulfill your individual needs as a bar/bat mitzvah, but also think about who you’re looking to help in the process.

3. Involve your community!

The old saying goes, “the more the merrier.” This is especially true when considering tikkun olam. Communities thrive when people are brought together for a common cause. Get your community involved and you are sure to have the support you need.

4. Be unique!

Your project should reflect you! Even if everyone you know has a mitzvah project, yours doesn’t have to look like anyone else’s. This is a great opportunity to do something new that you have never seen or experienced before, or something you know you love to do.

Check out the testimonials at the end of this guide to see how teens like you have made their projects unique!

5. Be proud of what you do!

Whatever you choose, keep in mind that this is a wonderful tradition that many others have participated in before you. It’s an amazing opportunity and you can make a real difference in the world! Be proud of the action you’re taking.

6. Have fun!

In the end, you should enjoy your time doing mitzvot and repairing the world. Make the most of your experience and know that finishing one mitzvah project will lead you to the next.
THERE IS A LOT OF INFORMATION IN THIS GUIDE, and we understand that it might be overwhelming. The biggest piece of advice we can give you about using this guide is to set goals for your mitzvah project. Refer back to these goals often and use them to point you in the right direction. Find what best fits you, your hobbies, and passions. Flip through this guide to find unique projects and service-based activities as well as many places to consider donating money or resources. Please note, there may be a cost at some on-site volunteer opportunities. Next to an organization’s name, you might also find symbols. The symbols below give you additional information about the organization, namely whether it is supported by JUF, if it requires a parent chaperone to be present while volunteering or if is a Jewish organization.

If you have questions that aren’t answered by this guide, please contact us! We would love to give you even more information and advice for your mitzvah project. Either visit juf.org/teens/BM-Projects.aspx or call us at 312-444-2867.
There are a few different stages you might be in right now as you plan for your mitzvah project, so jump to the section that you feel the strongest connection to and read more about how this guide can help you.

I have no idea what I want to do for my mitzvah project.

It can be tough to begin this process with no ideas about how to even start, so let’s go one step at a time. There are many ways to help people, so start by thinking about how you want to help. For example, do you want to take the lead on organizing a collection drive? Or would you rather focus on something hands-on? You will notice that this guide is not only organized by causes, but also by the type of service you can provide to an organization. Instead of reading about every opportunity listed in here, go to the ones affiliated with the type of project you want to complete and see if any jump out at you. You can also go to the websites listed on each page to get a better idea of what the needs of different organizations are and build your project off that. For more project inspiration, think about the things that you are passionate about or can relate to. Try to find connections between your hobbies and the causes and projects listed, then use these to find or create a mitzvah project that you feel excited to engage in.

I have an idea of what I want to do for my mitzvah project, but I need more guidance.

Having a general idea for a mitzvah project is a great place to start and using this guide will help you to turn that idea into a project you are passionate about. Start by considering what the goals of your mitzvah project are. Skim through the general causes in the guide and see if any of them pique your interest. If one does, look at the different ways that you can engage in service for it. Each cause has a list of ways to get involved both directly and indirectly, so there is bound to be something that excites you. You can also think about ways to combine different aspects of the causes you care about into one service project. Grab inspiration from the ideas in the guide and try to figure out how to put them into a single cohesive project. If this doesn't seem to work, you can always think about participating in smaller volunteering opportunities for a few different organizations. There isn't a single formula for a mitzvah project, so don’t be afraid to do something a little bit different.

I know what I want to do for my mitzvah project.

This is great to hear! We are here to help you through that process. If you need any support from us, feel free to contact us directly or use this guide to solidify your plans. Remember to keep an open mind and allow yourself to be a little flexible in case a related opportunity comes up that could complement your project. There are so many ways to help, and we are so excited for you to start your mitzvah project journey!

I am a parent/guardian/mentor looking to help my B’nai Mitzvah come up with their project.

Thank you for helping! The mitzvah project can be an overwhelming experience for some teens and your support is going to be instrumental in helping make this a positive experience. As you look through the guide, remember to keep in mind that this project is for your teen and things that interest you might not interest them. See if you can find links between any of the suggestions and past experiences that your teen has enjoyed. Keep time constraints in mind and be aware of projects that might be far away or require time that your teen does not have. Also, pay special attention to any service sites that would require a chaperone. If you or another adult is not able to volunteer with your teen, then suggest that they choose a project that can be completed independently.

Connecting with teens in Israel, especially in our Partnership Together region of Kiryat Gat, Lachish and Shafir, is a truly meaningful experience. Many teens want to support wonderful organizations such as Smiles Club and the Elem bus. These organizations and many others are valuable resources to the communities they serve, and many have a genuine need for supplies and equipment. However, we do not recommend collecting items for donation to Israeli organizations.

Why not? It is extremely expensive to ship items to Israel (often more than the cost of the items that are being sent). Once in Israel they are processed through customs, often incurring a duty fee or tariff. Customs is located near the Ben Gurion airport, which is a long drive from our region. This means the organizations must send a staff person during business hours to drive a minimum of 90 minutes round trip, and they often must pay a significant fee to pick up the items that have been shipped.

HOW TO HELP:
Raising money to support specific programs is a great way to provide organizations with the equipment and supplies they need while making your dollars and time go the furthest. By sending a designated monetary gift, you also support the Israeli economy because the items are purchased there!

To learn more about the organizations mentioned above, find out about our current needs and more, please email Partnership@juf.org.

INSPIRATION FROM PAST B’NAI MITZVAH PROJECTS

» Looking for a Lasting Impact with Kaboom!

When Marc was deciding what to do for his Bar Mitzvah project, he knew that he wanted to do something that would make a lasting impact. After talking to a family friend, they decided to pair up and work with KaBoom!, an organization that creates and builds playgrounds for kids living in low income communities. Before their B’nai Mitzvot, Marc and his friend spent time raising money from others in their community and beyond to fund the playground. They also met with the kids at Bright Star Church in Bronzeville, where the playground was being built, to discuss what they wanted the playground to look like. The day of the party, friends and family gathered at the church and spent the day building the playground. During this time, the partygoers were able to interact with the families at the church and enjoy food, music, and some impromptu dancing. This experience was one that showed both Marc and his community what was possible when teenagers were given an opportunity to go beyond typical expectations.

» Serving Dinner and Showcasing The Night Ministry

Rachel had always been interested in food and hunger. She used this passion when shaping her project. She spent time before her Bat Mitzvah volunteering at different community kitchens serving dinners to people in need and decided to expand on this idea for her party. She partnered with The Night Ministry, an organization that sets up on street corners to serve meals to families in need. Her party consisted of getting her friends together and making food to serve to 200 community members the following day. Rachel prepared a video in advance to show at her party which explained what The Night Ministry was and give a preview of the task at hand. While preparing their menu that included macaroni and cheese, vegetarian chili, and, of course, desserts, guests also had time to dance and celebrate with one another. The power of community was really highlighted to Rachel when she was able to see the incredible amount of food that was able to be given out after just a few hours of work.

» Creating Sydney’s Stuffing

Sydney’s parents always told her she had “good stuffing,” meaning she was full of compassion and sensitivity. In particular, she was bothered by homelessness. She used her good stuffing to create Sydney’s Stuffing, a nonprofit to make and distribute pillows to at-risk children. The pillows are designed to be portable—they have a clip to attach them to bags. And they are emblazoned with an appropriate inspirational message: “It’s what’s inside that counts.” In addition to homeless children, Sydney is distributing the pillows to kids in hospitals, as well as kids generally going through tough times. She also gave pillows to children she met in Israel, at an absorption center for Ethiopian immigrants in Kiryat Gat.

» Volunteer Bat Mitzvah “Service” at Cradles to Crayons

Hannah* and her family invited all their guests to do a volunteering session at Cradles to Crayons. Cradles to Crayons was founded with the mission of providing children in need some of the most important basics of life for free. Children are provided all the physical goods that they need to be safe, protected from the elements, and ready to learn. Volunteers helped sort and put together KidPacks: packages filled with clothing, shoes, books, and other essential items children need to thrive. Hannah had done her Bat Mitzvah service in Israel, so the volunteering session was that morning’s “service”. There was a girl power playlist, pizza and salad, and even a flash mob. The family had sent guests a short video teaching them the dance moves and they all danced at the end of the volunteering session. They had another party that night at a different venue.

» JUF’s Teen Volunteering Network: TOV Teens
The Tikkun Olam Volunteer Teens (TOV Teens) Network is JUF’s connection point specifically for teens who want to donate their time to help others in need. In accordance with tikkun olam, the Jewish concept of repairing the world one good deed at a time, TOV Teens connects members of the Jewish community with Jewish United Fund/Jewish Federation-affiliated agencies and with community service projects that need volunteers. Whether you are interested in volunteering once a week or once a year, in the city or in the suburbs, with elderly or with children, by tutoring or by serving food to the homeless, TOV Teen’s volunteer advisors will work hard to find the best match to meet your needs and interests.

» Camp TOV
Camp TOV is about making a difference while having fun. It’s a week-long, interactive service-oriented day program on wheels sponsored by JUF. Each day, campers head off on a new adventure, immersing themselves in volunteer projects that focus on poverty, hunger, environmental concerns, caring for the elderly, and more. In the process, they discover new issues, develop leadership skills, learn first-hand about giving back, and make new friends. Camp TOV is offered at the end of the summer, in July and August, for rising 7th-12th graders.

» Mini Camp TOV
Mini Camp TOV is the same great experience as Camp TOV, in a smaller package! It is a jam-packed two-day session of hands-on volunteering. Mini Camp TOV is offered in early June for rising 7th-12th graders.

OPEN A B’NAI MITZVAH FUND:

Here at JUF we have a team of professionals working to manage Donor Advised Funds, an easy-to-use charitable fund that can be established for a minimum of $1,000 with all charitable dollars invested tax free. A B’nai Mitzvah Fund is a type of Donor Advised Fund established in honor and celebration of this significant life milestone.

How does a B’nai Mitzvah Fund work? The fund can be named in honor of the B’nai Mitzvah and family and friends can contribute to the fund as a gift. In addition to helping teach the value of tzedakah, donors receive an immediate charitable tax deduction. Teens are then able to make distributions of at least $100 to both Jewish and secular charities that they care about. Additional contributions to the fund can be made at any time, allowing the B’nai Mitzvah to continue charitable giving into adulthood.

To find out more about Donor Advised Funds and B’nai Mitzvah Funds, please contact legacy@juf.org or 312-357-4853.
